For example, I'd like to have something like that : (I know there's a shape layer, but I don't know how to do it with it) Thank you A: It looks like you want to draw a "sheen" effect on a UIImage. This is done using two halves of the image (upper and lower half). You draw the lower half on top of the image using a UIColor and then you "blend" the two halves together. Code example from Apple's Drawing a UIImage: // Create the bitmap context CGContextRef bitmapContext = [[UIGraphicsGetCurrentContext() CGContextCreate] autorelease]; CGContextSpaceRef colorSpace = [NSColorSpace genericRGBColorSpace]; // Create the drawing items to draw into the bitmap context UIImage *backgroundImage = //image for the lower half UIImage *imageToDraw = //image for the upper half // Make the background color transparent CGContextSetRGBFillColor(bitmapContext, 0.0, 0.0, ba244e880a
