Democrats need to catch up to Republicans on the Senate floor after both sides backed out of plans to hold a roll call vote to confirm the judge this weekend. The delay was meant to pressure Republican senators to change their votes to ensure Kavanaugh's confirmation. If confirmed, Kavanaugh would take the seat currently held by retiring Justice Anthony Kennedy. Judge Kavanaugh, an establishment conservative, has been Trump's pick to replace Kennedy. Republicans have scheduled a procedural vote for the nomination to be put up for a vote on the Senate floor later this week. CNN reported that Democrats are not currently on board with a plan to push the vote through on the Senate floor. TRENDING: Jill Biden's First Husband: I Was Betrayed by the Bidens and I'm Backing Trump "Republicans are pushing to bring the nomination to the floor next week. Democrats are discussing whether to also bring Kavanaugh's nomination to the floor. No vote yet," a Democratic aide told CNN. At least four Republican senators are planning on voting "yes" on Kavanaugh's nomination: Sens. Mike Lee of Utah, Lisa Murkowski of Alaska, Susan Collins of Maine and Jeff Flake of Arizona. Each of those four Republicans voted to confirm Trump's first Supreme Court nominee, Neil Gorsuch.
