An introduction to ancient Eastern thought, philosophy, and art that provides a contemporary framework for engaging the art of the ancient world. The book gives a clear understanding of the sources and contents of ancient Buddhist art, and discusses the relationships between classical and contemporary art, including a detailed look at how art has been used as a tool to teach about the Middle East, from Mesopotamia to China and Japan. In addition to its references to classical works, the book includes more than two dozen reproductions of images from Burma, India, and the Near East.
