History Book PC Book Maker APK Category: BooksThursday, July 15, 2012 Oh lawd, me! Here I am blogging again! I am so ready to post a new photo of my family and maybe even do a giveaway or two to all of you lovely readers! Why yes, that is my big handsome man! :) If you missed one of my previous posts you can find them here and here. The most recent photo I took of him is up above. I call him "Jug-Man" because he wears a little nametag that says JUG-MAN on it. This is the same one he had been wearing for the previous 6 to 8 months of his life. He came into the world healthy and healthy-looking. He has such a wide smile and bright eyes. After I got him home from the hospital I immediately came home with my mom so we could take some photos. When I did the "yoga" pose, he started laughing at me and it was one of my favorite photos. He looks so put-together and serious! Well, 8 months later he has lost a lot of weight and has put on a lot of muscle. We have been going to the beach and the park for fun daily lately. One day at the park was when he first really got into rolling. This was a picture I took right after we got home. When we first got him home after he was born and his other brother was still in the NICU (Neo-Natal Intensive Care Unit) about four months later, Michael came home with me and my mom to our house so we could all take pictures. We went to the park that day. And I was the one that started rolling with him. He just so loved when we would roll and he was really into it. After I put him in his car seat after rolling, he just looked at me like, "what?" And kind of laughed, then rolled over and was content for about 10 minutes. LOL! But, I ended up getting a lot of great family photos at the park that day! After he laid on the ground for 10 minutes, he then looked at me again and smiled. Then, after about 5 minutes of him lying there watching the birds, he rolled over and said, "I love you mommy!" He then proceeded to curl up on his side and fall asleep. He was very 1cb139a0ed
