Q: Missing methods for views in Rails I have an extremely simple question that I am completely unable to answer. I am new to Rails so excuse my ignorance on this subject. I have a view that has this line: `The shipping_list_items` is a method I created in my cart controller. But for some reason, whenever I do that in the browser (chrome), I get an error: `NoMethodError in Carts#show undefined method `shipping_list_items' for #` But for some reason, it works fine when I do this in the console: `Cart.shipping_list_items.count` Also, I have an `@cart` instance variable in my cart controller and a `show` method for that controller, and those both seem to be working fine. Yet, the `show` method does not include the `shipping_list_items` method. So it's like the `show` method is ignoring it. Any help would be appreciated. Thanks

A better option is to use something like haml or slim. You can also use a javascript view (`content_for`).
