A decisão do STF de proibir a prisão temporária de presos preventivos é positiva, mas não representa uma mudança de posição da Corte, informou nesta quinta-feira (17) a Secretaria de Administração Penitenciária (Seap). O ministro Luís Roberto Barroso, que presidiu a Segunda Turma do STF durante a decisão, classificou a decisão de sentença "ad hoc" e "curiosa". A Segunda Turma teria sido ouvida somente na quarta-feira (16). A prisão temporária é determinada quando um preso é levado para o regime aberto, mas não cumpre a pena no sistema prisional. Se estiver em regime fechado, o juiz determina a presença do detento, alegando razão de ordem ou defesa pública, sem necessidade de prova.
