Is it more efficient to store the file as a string or is there a better way to store it. For example I have some images and strings that I want to put in a table I would like to store the file as a filepath on the device and then store the file as a string path, so I would have a row for "hello.jpg" and another for "/file/folder/hello.jpg" or just "hello.jpg" or "/file/folder/hello.jpg" I understand that storing the file as a string will be more efficient and I don't want to have the overhead of having to make the string
