This Is Us was inspired by parenthood. Why couldn't it have been about wanting to be a parent? Why couldn't it have been about an OB/GYN intern at a fertility clinic who thought she was in love but only with the fertility clinic, not a fellow patient? What I loved most about This Is Us is that it ran with an idea that's been done before, a set of families and couples at the end of the spectrum of parenthood—the ones who look like they want to be parents, but have given it up, or who didn't want it. And yet it's about how their stories feel so
